The Story of Hua Mulan

In ancient times, there lived a young girl. Her name was Hua Mulan. Her father was a retired and famous general. He taught her to use a sword and ride a horse.

One day, the military told the villagers that each family had to send one man to the army. Mulan's father was too old to fight. Mulan had no older brother, and her baby brother was too young.

Girls did not fight in wars, but Mulan knew that she had to. An idea grew in Mulan's mind. That day, she bought a horse. The next morning, Hua Mulan put on her father's armour, and said goodbye to her parents. She disguised herself as a man in the army, and fought bravely in the war for ten years. In all that time, no one knew that Mulan was a woman.

When the war ended, Mulan came back home. She dressed herself in woman's clothes. Mulan's friends in the army came to visit her. They could not believe their eyes: a beautiful woman was standing before them! It was their friend, Mulan.

Her story spread across China through the years to inspire girls everywhere.
